About the Poet

Edna St. Vincent Millay (1892-1950), Maine-born poet, playwright and musician, was the first woman to receive the Pulitzer Prize for poetry, in 1923 for her collection The Harp-Weaver and Other Poems. The poem Afternoon on a Hill appeared in print as part of her first poetry collection, Renascence and Other Poems, published in 1917, the year she graduated from Vassar College. Unconventional and independent-minded, she became a prominent member of the American literary scene from the 1920's through the 1940's, promoting poetry by giving public readings throughout the country. Her work remains renowned for its lyrical beauty, technical skill and intense sensitivity. Afternoon on a Hill, with its delicate, contemplative tone, considers one of Millay's most frequent subjects, rejuvenation through observation of nature.

I will be the gladdest thing

Under the sun!

I will touch a hundred flowers

And not pick one.

I will look at cliffs and clouds

With quiet eyes,

Watch the wind bow down the grass,

And the grass rise.

And when lights begin to show

Up from the town,

I will mark which must be mine,

And then start down!
